

Things to Ponder

- You chose to attack me, I chose not to retaliate, who's in control?
- In times of weakness and need, people turn to the strong person in their lives, but who do the strong people turn to in their hour of need?

Do they turn to their car, their house or their bank balance? Maybe. Or do they turn to their strong friends, family or dog – both forward and backward? Or do they turn to their inner strength that comes from all four?

- Are the things you are passionate about purely random, or are they your calling?
- Do situations in life keep repeating until you learn your lesson?
- When someone treats you nastily or treats you poorly, what does it say about them?
- Should you be worried when someone argues with you, or when they stop and have nothing left to fight for?
- Does life become simpler when you've been shown the Big Picture?